QUEENSBURY — SUNY Adirondack is now offering a one-year entrepreneurship and business management certificate program.

The program is intended for those who desire to enter business immediately upon graduation or are currently employed and looking for formal business education to enhance their prospects for employment and promotion.

The program also supports those who seek to own and operate their own businesses or go into an existing family business, according to a news release.

The coursework required for the certificate program prepares students for employment in a broad range of business fields and provides individuals with the knowledge and skills to assist in various management functions.

“This program is a reflection of the trend that has developed across the country: More and more people want to start their own businesses,” said A. Nicholas Buttino, chairman of SUNY Adirondack’s Business Division. “We want to help satisfy our students’ dreams of making it on their own, and this program will give them the tools to do that.”

For information on this program, contact the SUNY Adirondack Office of Admissions at 743-2264 or visit www.sunyacc.edu.
