Summary

The State University of New York (University) requires that University-sponsored research activities be open to participation by University students or faculty regardless of national origin or nationality. Exceptions to this policy may be granted on a case-by-case basis under special circumstances related to national security.

Policy

Any research or research-related programs conducted by State University of New York (University) personnel, carried out at the state-operated campuses or on University controlled premises shall be open to participation by University students or faculty regardless of national origin or nationality. The University will not accept contracts or research grants that exclude participation by foreign nationals.

Exceptions to this policy may be granted on a case-by-case basis by the chancellor or designee under special circumstances related to national security.
